PROFILE: Campus Printing Center is a veteran department

"The job I started off with 25 years ago is the job I have today," says Wilbert Chavis, supervisor of the campus Printing Center.

And, he wouldn't have it any other way for this well-oiled and well-run department.

"We have good equipment and good people," he said.

Office Assistant Emma Locklear is a 29-year veteran, and offset press operator Glenda Kaiser has 11 years of service to the university.

Printing Center: Wilbert Chavis, Glenda Kaiser and Emma Locklear.

The Printing Center, which turns out a wide variety of printed products from business cards to four-part forms, is a self supporting enterprise, which motivates the department and gives them the flexibility needed to get the job done, Mr. Chavis said.

WRITING CONTEST OPEN TO FACULTY/STAFF

The Friends of the Library are again sponsoring a Poetry and Short Prose Contest. There are separate competitions for staff and faculty, UNCP students, high school students and the general public.

Copies of rules and entries are available from the library's web site at <http://www.uncp.edu/library/> by clicking on the contest's links. Compete for prizes of $100, $50, and $25. Deadline for submissions is March 1.

There will be a reading of the award-winning pieces April 4 at 3 p.m. At the same time, campus authors will be honored with a reception. Questions? Call Jean Sexton at ext. 6659.

SPIRIT WEEK COMPETITION SET

The Employee Recognition Committee will sponsor the "ERC Spirit Award" for the best decorated office during Homecoming week, Feb. 5-10.

The winning office receives a trophy, ribbon and lunch at Pizza Hut. Second and third place offices receive a ribbon. If your office would like to participate in the "spirit" competition, please direct your inquiries to Shirley Rodgers at #6363.

DR. WORIAK IS NAMED A LINKAGE FELLOW

Dr. Velinda Worix, associate professor in Biology, has been selected to serve as a linkage fellow between UNC Pembroke and the American Society for Cell Biology Minorities Affairs Committee.

The committee seeks to provide increased opportunities for minorities in science professions.

SPERO ATTENDS NEWS DIRECTORS CONFERENCE

Doug Spero, assistant professor in Mass Communications and director of WNCP-TV, recently participated in a news directors conference in Minneapolis.

He served on two panels. A CNN Educator's Panel that explored violence and sexual content on television and a second panel discussed budgets in TV news rooms.

GRAD STUDENT EARNS TRAINING CERTIFICATION

Physical education graduate student Regina Varos has recently joined the ranks of a select few. Varos passed the National Athletic Trainers Association Certification exam.

Less than a third of all students taking the exam each year pass all three sections. Varos, who earned her undergraduate degree from UNCP in physical education with a concentration in athletic training, said she could not have passed the test without the support of the campus community.

"The support on campus was great," said Varos. "I had half the campus praying for me. The faculty and undergraduate students were great support, especially the current undergraduates in the athletic training internship program."

Varos also said UNCP head athletic trainer Susan Edkins and assistant trainer Beverly Justice have been very supportive. Varos, who plans to earn her master's degree in May, 2002, said the certification will benefit her now and in the future. She plans to teach.
